Dear Mr. Brice: We all know how much we appreciate your taking time from your busy schedule to come to Washington to share with us your knowledge of personnel administration. In this ever-changing age, it goes without saying that we cannot be merely satisfied with how we manage our valuable human assets, but rather must constantly strive for new methods that I hope will result in not only greater production but careers that are more interesting and challenging.

Again, I thank you sincerely for visiting with us and my best wishes to you for the future.

Sincerely,
